New Record Set in Attendance and Income at Bellevue Arts Museum's Annual Fundraiser Artful Evening

Published August 2nd, 2009

Bellevue Arts Museum welcomed more than 400 enthusiastic arts aficionados, political officials and community members to the Museum's annual fundraiser, Artful Evening. A tradition that started in 1953, Artful Evening raises funds in support of the Museum's important exhibitions and educational programs and to keep BAM both accessible and affordable.

With over $600,000 raised this year, the Museum set a new record. The success is due to the outstanding contributions of its patrons and business supporters, many of which have not only renewed, but increased their commitment to BAM. "We are immensely grateful for the tremendous dedication and trust the community has demonstrated in the Museum, despite the challenging economic times," says Susan Edelheit, President of the Board of Trustees. "The community made a clear statement that they believe in the Museum's importance as a vibrant artistic center and a crucial part of the social fabric of Bellevue, the greater Eastside and the Puget Sound region," adds Mark W. Crawford, Executive Director/CEO. "We can not thank our patrons enough for their generosity, enthusiasm and commitment."

BAM has dramatically increased both attendance and income generated through its annual fundraiser over the past few years. In 2007 the event welcomed 320 attendees and grossed $411,000; in 2008 it grew to 350 attendees and $530,000. Today, Artful Evening is the largest annual fundraising activity to benefit Museum programs. "Thanks to the generosity of our patrons, we are able to bring some of the finest craft and design artists of our region and nationwide to this community," Michael Monroe, Director of Curatorial Affairs, states. "We are able to expand our educational and community programs and we can be more effective in reaching out to underserved communities. It takes all of us to make it happen."

The evening began with a festive reception at the Museum with a silent auction that featured over 90 unique art items, all of which had been generously donated by BAM artsfair artists. Following the reception, guests were led down a red carpet for a delicious dinner at The Westin Bellevue and a live auction featuring amazing art by some of the finest contemporary artists and spectacular art experiences. The festivities also included the presentation of the 2009 Carol Duke Artist Awards of Excellence sponsored by Tiffany & Co. Ten award winners, chosen by this year's esteemed BAM artsfair jurors, were given a $1,000 prize each in memory of Carol Duke, one of the founders of the original fair.

The evening was emceed by Susan Hutchison, former KIRO-TV news anchor and now Executive Director of the Charles Simonyi Fund for Arts and Sciences. Nationally recognized auctioneer Kip Toner officiated the live auction. Long-term BAM supporters and community leaders Rick and Bonnie Collette were this year's honorees in recognition of their outstanding leadership and dedication to Bellevue Arts Museum. The event was generously sponsored by Davis Wright Tremaine, LLP; GLY Construction and Tiffany & Co.

LatinVision Announces the Digital and Social Media Convergence 2009

Published July 31st, 2009

The Latin Media and Entertainment Commission of the City of New York (LMEC) and LatinVision Media announced today the full lineup of participants in this year's Digital and Social Media Convergence 2009 Conference, Wednesday, October 14, 2009.

Janet Robinson, CEO of The New York Times, will do the opening remarks. A three-hour Business Networking Reception follows where industry, talent and investors will be able to connect in a more relaxed environment at the crossroads of the world.

The 2009 Convergence Conference is the premier event for Latin media, entertainment, technology and advertising CEOs and executives looking to grow their business and explore new opportunities with Latin audiences and to reach the mainstream, which spotlights the constant state of creation and evolution required of business leaders in today's rapidly changing digital and social media landscape.

"This year's Convergence Conference will bring together the best minds of the country's Latin media, entertainment, technology and advertising sectors to the center of the world's greatest stage — New York City," said Mayor Bloomberg. "This collaboration between our City's Latin Media and Entertainment Commission and LatinVision is another example of the great work our City is doing to solidify our position as the Latin media and entertainment capital of the world."

Speakers are going to explore ideas and offer wisdom on the constant changes that are taking place within these industries. Among the varied topics are what creativity means in a digital world, whether the Web can support quality content, and how technology can change not only the way a company sends messages to consumers but also the way a company operates locally, regionally and internationally.

"Convergence 2009 captures the feverish pace of transformation happening in the media, entertainment, technology and advertising world today," said Carlos Vassallo, CEO of LatinVision. "It is clearly a time of great change. A look at the top 50 US Websites shows that many are getting more traffic from abroad than from the US Spanish and Spanish is the third most used language in the world on the Internet with 130 million users after Chinese and English,” added Mr. Vassallo.

Speakers are a “who’s who” of CEOs, top marketers, senior executives, publishers, and industry gurus and experts. To view the speakers simply log onto www.latinvision.com/conference/speakers.pdf

In addition to the lineup of keynotes, Convergence 2009 offers its attendees an unrivaled opportunity to learn from CEOs and senior marketers who will share their experience from across a variety of emerging platforms including streaming, podcasting, radio, blogging, social networking, Internet, WiFi, audio, video and mobile casting and case studies of new ventures and how they got started through financing and networking events.

For a full list of confirmed speakers and information on how to register, please visit www.latinvision.com/conference

Several sponsorship packages are still available. For more information on sponsorships, please contact Carlos Vassallo at 646-519-2452 or via email at: carlos@latinvision.com

About the Latin Media and Entertainment Commission (LMEC)

Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg created the LMEC in 2003 with the mission to make New York the capital of Latin media and entertainment.

The Commission advises the Mayor on business development and retention strategies for the Latin media and entertainment industry, to retain, recruit, and expand Latin media and entertainment productions, businesses, and jobs in New York City and to attract and host high-profile Latin entertainment productions and events and to support and create New York based events.

The Commission is made up of leaders from the Latin and mainstream media industry, community leaders from the nonprofit and cultural sectors, and leading executives from the financial, advertising, publishing, new media, and real estate sectors.

The heads of seven City agencies, under the direction of the Deputy Mayor for Economic Development, serve on the commission as ex officio members.

About LatinVision Media

LatinVision Media Inc. is a New York based Company that operates business portals targeting US Hispanic and Latin American professionals, entrepreneurs, executives and business owners in a small and medium-sized companies.

SGS Exhibits at the EOW 2009 in Stockholm, Sweden

Published July 31st, 2009

Meet SGS at the biggest European Offshore Wind Energy Conference and Exhibition organized by the European Wind Energy Association (EWEA). EOW 2009 (www.eow2009.info) will be held for the third time on September 14-16, 2009 in Stockholm, Sweden.

During this 3-day event SGS will present to the European audience its wind energy services, such as offshore wind farm project certification and condition monitoring. SGS will be exhibiting at Stand no. B0921.

Visitors will have the opportunity to watch the SGS Wind Energy experts' live Oil Analysis Demonstration. Effective oil analysis helps identify lubrication-related failures; therefore, regular monitoring of the chemical and physical changes in a lubricant is essential to detect machine wear and provide early warning for potential failures. Oil analysis can effectively reduce maintenance costs and increase the reliability and availability of monitored equipment. Samples for oil analysis can be taken from a wind turbine gearbox, generator or hydraulic system.

In addition to the live demonstration SGS kindly invites you to the Happy Hour at 4:00 PM on Tuesday, September 15, 2009, where the SGS Wind Energy Expert Team will discuss topics such as the design, installation, commissioning and maintenance phases of offshore wind farm projects and the risks they entail, among others.

As the world's leading inspection, verification, testing and certification company, SGS is the preferred international partner for onshore and offshore wind farm projects. Our strength comes from our experienced staff that has the requisite technical expertise in wind technology.

SGS is committed to providing a fully comprehensive program for the Wind Energy Sector (www.sgs.com/wind) designed to meet the specific requirements of your company. Our aim is to achieve 100% success in helping you meet your own availability targets.

The SGS Group is the global leader and innovator in inspection, verification, testing and certification services. Founded in 1878, SGS is recognized as the global benchmark in quality and integrity. With more than 56,000 employees, SGS operates a network of over 1,000 offices and laboratories around the world.
